TRAGEDY AVERTED

VANCOUVER (CP)—A city police inspector said today a "national tragedy" was averted by the work of a 100-man police force Saturday night at the performance here of the Beatles.

Insp. F. C. Errington said the estimated 17,000 youngsters watching the singers compared with no other crowd he had ever seen.

During the hysteria of the 29-minute performance itself, Insp. Errington was quoted as

"These people have lost all ability to think." * * *

He said in an interview today:

"Every policeman there was happy they didn't have to pack away seriously injured children.

"One hundred policemen were there. That's all that stood between the way it wound up and a national tragedy."

Police strained against steel fences to hold back thousands of teen-agers surging toward the platform held by the four performers in their sheepdog haircuts.

They threw children aside to seize a child tramped underfoot, and carried scores of others to the Empire Stadium concourse for first-aid treatment. There were no serious injuries or broken bones, but many youngsters lay exhausted on cold concrete, their emotions spent from screaming.

The Beatles management said the Vancouver police employed the most effective crowd-control measures of the quartet's tour so far.

It was their first outdoor appearance.

The designers are George Matheson and Donald Chishol, who work out of a Toronto studio they call "The Crea-

There is no competitor in sight to contest Mr. Johnson's nomination for the country's highest office. The vice-presidential nomination is less sure, but Senator Humphrey of Minnesota appears to be favored, The chief public interest in the week's doings will therefore centre on the platform for the coming election campaign and how it is to be presented to the people.

There are complications. Just as Senator Goldwater's nomination raised the possibilities of a serious schism in the Republican Party, so the Democrats are rent by internal controversies. The historically solid Democratic South is solid no longer and may well split along black and white lines in next November's polling. The Republicans no doubt will gain support there for Senator Goldwater's racial attitude, but lack the increasingly important Negro vote. The size of that vote—and it should reach record proportions this time-will have an important bearing on the southern results.

The Democrats' racial policy, displayed in the recent civil rights bill of the late Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Johnson, will cost many votes in the deep South, and Alabama's Governor Wallace is already threatening to organize a new splinfour years ago by a very small mar-gin over his Republican rival.

Senator Goldwater has probably recouped some of the losses his extremism provoked even among longtime Republicans. His more recent statements have been tempered even though his basic philosophy seems not to have changed. This may be enough of a concession to permit many Republicans who want to vote for their party to accept the Goldwater bid. And many more moderate Republicans are now standing up to be counted among Senator Goldwater's supporters. It could well be a much closer presi-dential contest than earlier indications promised.

These considerations will be well to the fore at Atlantic City. They will be examined against the background of the Administration's record in domestic legislation, its conduct of the Viet Nam struggle, its position in the now-moderate East-West cold war, and, above all, Mr. Johnson's success in promoting a favorable economic climate.

All these are key factors. But the Party's thoughts will never be far off the over-riding racial question. Whether or not he uses his vote, the Negro may well prove to be the deciding influence at the polls, and hence a decisive factor in the trend of United States affairs, both domestic and international, over the next four years.

Once a Year

THE OBJECTIVE OF THIS year's United Appeal has been set at $410,000. This is $10,000 more than was asked last year and indicates a normal increase to meet the additional demands on welfare and recreational services in the Greater Victoria community.

It is a larger increase, however, over what was actually collected in based on the needs of a single last year's campaign, in which agency. But if the United Appeal last year's campaign, in which $382,000 was contributed. The shortage made it necessary to review agency services which already had been reduced to the lowest acceptable total. Somewhere in the more than a score of agencies which benefit from the United Appeal somebody had to do without something, some office got less help than it requested. All that saved us from real trouble was the Chest contingency reserve, now depleted. having a big heart, too.

That is not an excusable situation in a community as prosperous as ours. ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE retirement in the next few months of about one-third of the 143 officers in the top four ranks of Canada's armed forces is an obviously logical part of the streamlining of the forces being carried out by Defence Minister Paul Nevertheless it has drawn the fire in Parliament of Opposition critics who deplore the "wastage" of so much trained and experienced top-level personnel. How the critics proposed to integrate the command structure of the army, navy and air force — a move which has drawn general approval of Canadian taxpayers on the basis of economy and efficiency — and at the same time keep all the top brass in their old jobs, is difficult to understand.

Other senior officers are taking their early retirement with good grace and have acknowledged that they have no wish to stay on when there is no job for them to do.

In any event, none of those being retired will be badly off financially and many of them, no doubt, will put their freedom from the services to good use both to themselves and to the country. way long before Mr. Diefenbaker launched his present suicidal war with Quebec. When the Globe and Mail demands that Conservative Party dismiss Mr.

Diefenbaker it is very late. The real chance to choose a new leader appeared but was missed at the party convention last winter. It was missed, as every insider knows, only because Mr. Diefen-haker's opponents feared a public split when Mr. Pearson might call a snap elec-tion to take advantage of his enemy's weakness. That, as the Conservative dissidents now see, was a mistake for two

Split Revealed

In the first place, Mr. Pearson had no thought of calling an election whether Mr. Diefenbaker was confirmed in his leadership or rejected. Secondly, Mr. Diefenbaker, once confirmed, did exactly as he pleased and deepened the party split until it can no longer be hidden.

By evading the essential issue before it and covering the cracks with tissue paper, the Conservative convention postponed the party's recovery and greatly increased the difficulty of unloading Mr. Diefenbaker.

Thus the convention made the worst of all possible worlds, not only for the Conservative party but for the whole puts it, "the destruction of the party . . . short, the young rebel of Prince Albert would mean the destruction of the two-party system and there would be a solution of the two-party system and there would be a solution of the two-party system and there would be a solution of the two-party system and there would be a solution of the two-party system and there would be a solution of the two-party system and there would be a solution of the two-party system and there would be a solution of the two-party system and there would be a solution of the two-party system. party system and there would be no real Mr. Diefenbaker's peculiar magnetism, alternative to the Liberals."

Few who watched the exciting occasion could imagine that he would win an election within six months. Still fewer seemed Canadians."
to guess that in choosing him the party Even if it were true it is useless for had chosen a winner but not a Conserv-

That was the trouble from the begin-ning — with all his remarkable talents Mr. Diefenbaker had never been a Con-servative. He had always been a rather confused radical, a western agrarian rebel. As such he could master and control his party so long as it was winning. When he began to lose he had no body of principles to stand on, no central doctrine which could unite the party under stress.

It was united superficially, for the time being, by victory but, lacking any inner cohesion of thought, it was instantly divided by the first omens of defeat, early in 1962. The cabinet fell apart since there was nothing but the prime minister's personality to solidify it and that frail cement had broken.

Mr. Diefenbaker was the ideal man to win the first two elections of 1957 and 1958 but not the man to build a durable Conservative government or party because of his views, such as they were, flatly contradicted Conservatism and all his supporters who believed in it.

It is no discredit to Mr. Diefenbaker, of course, that he was never a Conservative. On the contrary, it is to his honor that he dared, with rare courage, to quarrel with the basic principles of his party and tried to make it a radical organ of the left in his own image. Plainly he had failed.

Wrong Party

He was bound to fail because the party's true place in the scheme of things is not on the left but on the right where the Conservative party cannot be reunited system split on the lines of race.

improbable movie thriller, with the choice no foreign policy, no economic program, of Mr. Diefenbaker as party leader. and certainly no coherent thoughts on the great issue of the times, relations between English - speaking and French - speaking

> Mr. Diefenbaker's partisans to defend him by Pelying that the Liberal party is equally confused. The fact that both national parties are in a state of flux and bewilderment only emphasizes the need of a coherent opposition and an alternative government. If such an opposition and alternative existed today it could hope to dislodge the government at the next elec-tion and assuredly in the meantime it could force the government to re-think Liberal policy.

No National Policy

Nothing, indeed, could be better for Liberalism than a candid, responsible Conservatism to restore the natural equilibrium of the party system and force the nation to decide what it wants to do and where it wants to go. While neither party is clear about its own purposes there can be no national policy worthy of that name.

And today there is none.

Hence the Conservatives who are trying to unload Mr. Diefenbaker have a responsibility much graver than the pursuit of office. Their responsibility is to restore Conversatism as a respectable, though not yet necessarily a majority doctrine, as the balance wheel of a social machine which, otherwise, may run wild and shatter itself.

To symbolize and manage this return to its true base, the Conservative party needs a new leader and no doubt will find him in due time but that will not be enough. It must also find a new con-sensus, an understandable policy, a known direction, before it is ready for it must endure opposition until the people are ready to accept its philosophy In the Conservative party the Diefenbaker era can now be plainly seen as an aberration that seems at least of be ending but may not end, as the Globe and Mail fears, before it makes Conservatism only a sterile anti-French party and produces the final disaster of a political

Today we all know the kind of man the United States has in the White House. He does not conjure miracles in Congress nor win his way by dictation. He obtains the consent of Congress by his mastery of the legislative process and by his instinc-tive respect for the rights and powers of Congress. He has given the South the chance to be true to its own best traditions of freedom, just as he has rebuked the men of violence who try to gain civil rights by civil wrongs, regardless of their color and regardless of their religion.

On the crucial domestic issue of our time he has shown that he can lead without arrogance and can heal where others would tear asunder and work their mischief. It is the future which must engage the attention of the Democrats. The supres issue now before the country is directly related to the whole structure of American politics. Senator Goldwater believes that all power vested in Washington tends to be wasteful or blundering or oppressive. The sincerity with which he holds this view people rather than its master. That is the great American tradition, and President Johnson stands within its sanction and its inspiration. Senator Goldwater challenges that tradition and wishes to overthrow it. On that issue the campaign will turn, and on its outcome will rest the future of

The other day Senator Humphrey said that since he first entered the Senate in 1949 the population of the United States has grown by the current population of Great Britain and it continues to grow at the rate of three million a year. Each month we must provide 300,000 new jobs if only to prevent the unemployment figures from rising. Each day 1000 Americans reach the age of 65, many of them without funds for their medical care. Each year 100,000 qualified high school students fail to attend college because they cannot pay the fees.

Can responsible government, Senator Humphrey asked, simply ignore these economic and social realities? He spoke the Democratic Party in saying that the government must do something about them even it it leads to yet another scharge by Senator Goldwater of a swollen bureaucracy in Washington.

The country will judge the success of the Democratic convention not by its attacks on Senator Goldwater but by its own policies for peace and economic growth under leadership in Washington that will be responsive to the people's needs and responsible in their fulfilment. No smaller test will match the mood of the nation or the duty of the Democrats.

'Human Dignity'

In Florida, a Negro leader ays "the Miami Negro has attained human dignity and the opportunity to take advantage of these good new things as he can qualify for them."

In San Francisco, employers attend a reception for 300 members of Kappa Alpha Psi, the country's largest predomi nantly Negro fraternity, in the interest of improving job opportunities for Negroes.

In Virginia, in recent council elections, two Negroes are elected in Richmond and Petersburg. It is about 16 years since Richmond had a Negro councilman.

ordered. In Mississippi, Negro children quietly enrol in all-white schools. Two years ago, rioting and death attended the enrolment of James Meredith in the University of Missis-

And from many cities, north and south, newspaper cor-respondents, public officials and persons studying the problem, report "a change of climate."

More and More

Examples of the quiet revolution multiply on all sides. This is the meaning behind he statement of Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy who said, speaking of the Civil Rights Act, "while there have been isolated instances of resistance , , , hundreds and ties and businesses are accepting the law." . The Civil Rights Act was passed July 2. Burke Marshall, chief of the civil rights division of the jus-tice department, put it this

'Tokenism'

And some Negroes feel that what has been done has been little and late. They speak of "tokenism" in de-segregating the schools, and of white indifference to their problems of housing and job opportunities.

Yet, today contrasts sharply with the recent past. Before 1960, for example

Only recently, Negro mannequins have appeared in the display windows of New York city stores. New York designers are employing them as models in increas g numbers now.

Last year, Alabama's Gov ernor George Wallace was standing in the doorway of a building attempting to block the enrolment of two Negroes in the University of Alabama. This year, reports Rex Thomas, AP corres-pondent in Montgomery, the atmosphere changed. Community lead-ers have spread the word that violence will accomplish

CBC TV plans to be as controversial as possible in subjects to be dealt with by the successor to the highly successful "Quest" series.

"Eye-Opener" will deal with such topics as the growing horror of an over-populated world . . the never-ending struggle of society to achieve material comforts . . , the hypocrisy of people who claim to be unprejudiced about the color of another person's skin.

The program is the idea of executive producer Mario Prizek, who is known for his work with the network's Festi-

He wants the program to make full use of television's power to disturb, in order to make people ware of things around them which they tend to take for granted.

He hopes the shock provoked will be "the shock of recognition" rather than the shock of provocation.

The first of the series was recently filmed in Tor-o. "The Black Madonna," adapted by Barry Hale from a novel by British writer Muriel Spark, is a satire about white moderates who make a point of declaring their love for colored people, but in the end turn out to be as color conscious as the most rabid racists

Other properties acquired for the program include:

A Shirtey Temple half-hour situation comedy 'Dutchman,' the highly-fouted racial drama by Negro is being developed by ABC-TV for the 1965-66 see

Drop Christ From Christmas

WASHINGTON (AP)—The public schools should eliminate the religious emphasis in their observances of Christmas, a committee of educationists said Saturday.

Christmas, a committee of educationists said Saturday.

Instead, the committee said,
Christmas should be presented as one of many contributions to the American heritage which has been created by many religions.

In a report, "Religion in the Public Schools," prepared for the American Association of School Administrators, the educationists also:

In calling for better instructions to the committee of the committ

Said school calendars, person-nel policies and extra-curricular activities all should be adapted to accommodate a diversity of religious backgrounds and prac-ties.

BASIC LAW

The basic law seems clear, it added, that "under the consti-tution, the public schools may not sponsor a religious service whether it be for a single multi-denominational group. Neither may public schools sup-port the Christian religions, Christian churches, nor distinc-tively Christian doctrines . . .

"The non-Christian is not a guest in a Christian school—he is a fellow citizen in a public school which includes a good many Christian members."

The educationists said they recommend "the policy that encourages reasonable recognition of Christmas in the schools in the spirit of exposition of the differing rites and customs of families, cultures, and creeds—each with deep meaning for its adherents, and in sum revéaling the many different religious, philosophical, and cultural practices and beliefs held by Amer-

"Along with government and all its agencies, the schools must be neutral in respect to the religious beliefs of its cit-izens . . . there is no threat to the individual, to religion, or to the common good in the removal of religious exercises from the schools."

In what seemed an obvious reference to the proposed constitutional amendment to guarantee freedom to pray in public schools, the report quoted the following statement by the late Justice Jackson of the U.S. Supreme Court:

"The very purpose of a Bill of Rights was to withdraw cer-

UP TO CHURCH

Urged that high school baccalaureate services be left to individual churches and synagogues, with no school requirement for attendance.

In calling for better instruction about religion in the public high schools, the educationists said the history of western civilization cannot be understood "without some understanding of the great religion and church influences reaching back to the earliest of recorded times."

The report noted two major drawbacks to teaching about religion:

TRAGEDY AVERTED

VANCOUVER (CP)—A city police inspector said today a "national tragedy" was averted by the work of a 100-man police force Saturday night at the performance here of the Beatles.

Insp. F. C. Errington said the estimated 17,000 youngsters watching the singers compared with no other crowd he had ever seen.

During the hysteria of tthe 29-minute performance itself, Insp. Errington was quoted as saying:

"These people have lost all ability to think."

He said in an interview today:

"Every policeman there was happy they didn't have to pack away seriously injured children.

"One hundred policemen were there. That's all that stood between the way it wound up and a national tragedy."

Police strained against steel fences to hold back thousands of teen-agers surging toward the platform held by the four performers in their

sheepdog haircuts.

They threw children aside to seize a child tramped underfoot, and carried scores of others to the Empire Stadium concourse for first-aid treatment. There were no serious injuries or broken bones, but many youngsters lay exhausted on cold concrete, their emotions spent from screaming.

The Beatles management said the Vancouver police employed the most effective crowd-control measures of the quartet's tour so far.

Democrats Face Showdown On Civil Rights

ATLANTIC CITY (CP) Democrats began opening the curtain on their 1964 convention today as they moved to pledge fair enforcement of the civil rights act and to denounce of the fight.

While the platform committee hammered out this plank—see hammered out this plank—see story on Page 2—peacemakers worked feverishly backstage to cool off the most heated dispute of the convention opening to-night. night.

The credentials committee sought to find some magic com-promise that would satisfy, if not please, both southern states and civil rights supporters in the hassle over seating the Mississippi delegation.

At issue is whether the cor vention will seat the regular Democratic delegation or the predominantly Negro group representing the Mississippi Free m Democratic party.

KEEPS GUESSING GAME

President Johnson, his nomination to be little more than a formality Wednesday night, has been keeping the party guessing as to his choice for a vice-presidential running mate as he called signals from Washington shaping the platform and trying to ease North-South clashes.

But a spokesman for Missis-sippi Freedom Democratic party delegation, Washington lawyer Joseph Rauh Jr., claimed today he had enough votes to force a floor fight over the Missistand question the Mississippi question.

He reiterated at a press con He reiterated at a press con-ference that the freedom group would not accept a compromise proposal that the regular Mis-sissippi delegation be seated and the Negro group be given a voteless and voiceless place

Rauh said his group was hold ing out for a plan where only those Mississippians from both rival groups who sign a party loyalty pledge would be allowed

A loyalty oath pledge was also demanded of the Alabama delegation by the credentials committee. The delegation spurned it Sunday night by a vote of 33 to 3.

But today three Alabama delegates and two alternates signed the pledge of loyalty to the party's presidential nominee and one predicted that a majority of the delegation would go

If that should happen it might keep the Alabama delegation on the floor during the convention and prevent further hassling over its seating.

The Alabama matter hinges on the fact that the delegates originally were committed to Governor Wallace, an ardent segregationist, who is believed likely to support Republican Continued on Page 2

He said in an interview today:

"Every policeman there was happy they didn't have to pack away seriously injured children. "One hundred policemen were there. Th all that stood between the way it wound up and a national tragedy."

Police strained against steel fences to hold back thousands of teen-agers surging toward the platform held by the four performers in their sheepdog haircuts.

They threw children aside to seize a child tramped underfoot, and carried scores of others to the Empire Stadium concourse for first-aid treatment. There were no serious injuries or broken bones, but many youngsters lay exhausted on cold concrete, their emotions spent from screaming.

The Beatles management said the Vancouver police employed the most effective crowd-control measures of the quartet's tour so far.

It was their first outdoor appearance.

The three-month old regime of Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri faces its first major controntation with the Communists as plans call for picketing of banks, stock exchanges, grain dealers and government offices.

About 400 persons marched on the market shouting slogans against price increases and food hoarding. The grain dealers replied with shouts of "anti-national" at the demonstrators.

Those arrested were charged with causing "obstruction in the normal transaction of business."

With the storm skirting along the southwest peninsula of neighboring Haiti, radio Santo Doningo reported no damage or injuries on the Dominican Republic's southern Barahona peninsula. The storm's centre passed well out to sea.

The storm swirled past southern Puerto Rico Sunday after battering the Guadeloupe Islands. Officials blamed Cleo for at least 14 deaths, 100 injuries and $50,000,000 in damage to the

The weather bureau said Cleo's 125-mile wide mass of hurricane force winds apparently would skirt Hispaniola's heartland. But the storm was headed toward Haiti's southern peninsula, where thousands were killed last year by Hurricane Flora.

Cleo also might strike Cuba with its fury intact, the weather bureau said. However, it was too early to say whether it would pose any danger to the U.S. mainland.
